New Big Boy eatery comes to Granite City

Former Shoney's opens to huge crowds

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

There is a new boy in town.
A Big Boy, that is.
On

Tuesday, a Big Boy Restaurant opened in the former Shoney's Restaurant, located at 3708 Nameoki Road. Shirley Gossage, an operations consultant with Elias Brothers Corp., which operates the chain, said the opening of the new restaurant has been "beautiful."

"It was very busy for lunch, a very nice crowd," she said. "Everybody is really happy that we're here, they're almost as happy as we are."

The restaurant chain has been in business for more than 60 years. It recently purchased several Shoney's restaurants in the St. Louis area and has either converted them or will convert them to the Big Boy name and concept.

"We're bringing the best food in the industry," Gossage said. "It is brought to you in a clean environment and served by well-trained employees."

In addition to sit-down food service, the restaurant offers a Big Boy Gift Shop, featuring T-shirts, hats and other merchandise; the Big Boy Pie Shop; Dolly's Market, offering soups, salad dressings and side dishes to go; and Big Boy Ice Cream Counter.

"We are excited about opening the world's favorite family restaurant in Granite City," said Tony Michaels, executive vice president of marketing and public relations for Elias Brothers Corp.

The Granite City opening is one of several in the area, including Collinsville and Alton.

"We are looking forward to expanding our presence in the St. Louis market," Michaels said. "We anticipate that by early spring, there will be approximately 12 Big Boy Restaurants offering quality

BAC honoring 15 leaders at 15th anniversary banquet Tuesday

Granite City Campus providing opportunities for Tri-Cities

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

For 15 years, Belleville Area College's Granite City Campus has been providing education for people getting ready to go on to four-year universities, trying to learn a trade or just looking for something to do.

As part of the college's 15th anniversary celebration, the college is honoring 15 Tri-City area people at its 15th Anniversary Community Awards.

The awards will be handed out during a banquet, which will be held at 6 p.m. Tuesday, March 30, at Sunset Hills Country Club in Edwardsville.

"In commemoration of finishing 15 years, we're honoring 15 people who have really done wonderful things in the community," said Kathy O'Dell, executive director of the BAC Foundation and a member of the celebration's planning committee. "We felt it was a wonderful time to salute those people who have done so much for the community."

The college, housed at the old Granite City North High School campus, has approximately 2,700 students.

Those being honored are: Donald G. Adams: President of Granite City Glass and Fence. Adams served on the committee that was instrumental in bringing Belleville Area College to the Tri-Cities area and has continued to promote the college by hiring BAC graduates and using the college to train employees.

Adams has received the Sam Walton Business Leader Award, the Tri-Cities Citizens Achievement Award and the Small Business of the Year Award.

Dale Arnette: The founder and former president of Arnette Pattern Company, he has been a long-time supporter of BAC. He and his wife established a fund through the BAC Foundation to provide awards for student workers at the GCHS Industrial Training Center.

John Bellcoff: Former mayor of Madison. Bellcoff has spent more than 50 years in community service in a variety of civic and charitable organizations.

He served as Madison City Clerk for 18 years, then three terms as mayor from 1985 to 1997. He also served as Madison County Democratic Party chairman for four years.

Mary Brown: An employee at BAC for 18 years, Brown was the first college staff member to step inside the GCC campus. As an admissions and financial aid assistant, she has spent the past 15 years at GCC helping students.

She is also a supporter of the River Bluff Girl Scout Council. Rosemarie Brown: Born and raised in Granite City, Brown has been very active in a variety of community-oriented projects, including helping to found Hospice of Madison County. She was also the first female president of the Granite City Rotary Club, serving from 1994-1996. She also co-chaired the Granite City Centennial Grand Finale Celebration in 1996.

C.A. Jack Dempsey: As co-owner of Dempsey & Adams Co., he worked to build the auto glass repair and commercial/industrial fencing business from a two-person operation into a company with 50 employees.

Dempsey has been recognized for his leadership ability as a recipient of the Sam Walton Business Leader Award, Small Business of the Year Award and Tri-Cities Citizens Achievement Award.

Georgia M. Engelke: A teacher, author and historian, Engelke — whose ancestors were among the area's first settlers — has shared her knowledge and love of the Resolution and refund spark disagreements

Pontoon Board squabbles during Tuesday meeting

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Questions over copies of a resolution used in a court case recently and an refund from a two-year old bill for repair of the village hall roof led to brief arguments at Tuesday night's Pontoon Beach Village Board meeting.

Village Clerk Mary Rowden asked why a copy of a resolution filed as evidence in the recent court hearing over Jim Denham's spot on the mayoral ballot was different from the official version she kept as part of her records. The resolution dealt with the hiring of Granite City attorney Casper Nighohossian to represent the village's Electoral Board.

Nighohossian was hired because Electoral Board members Irene Karlechik and Rowden felt Village Attorney Brian Polinski would not adequately represent them.

The Village Board — with Mayor Glen Wilson breaking a 3-3 tie — rejected Nighohossian's representing the village. However, at the trial, Circuit Judge James

Dog attack leads to lawsuit

Parents seeking $50,000 for medical expenses

By Curtiss A. Hartley

A hearing is scheduled in Madison County Circuit Court March 31 for a lawsuit filed on behalf of a 7-year-old Granite City boy mauled by a neighbor's dog in February.

The boy's parents, Duane and Gina Childs of the 4700 block of Warnock Road, have filed the lawsuit against the owners of the dogs, Elizabeth Moore and Sherry Frieden, also of the 4700 block of Warnock.

On Feb. 2, 7-year-old Dakota Childs was playing in his yard on Warnock Road, just outside the Granite City city limits, when he was attacked by two 65-pound chow belonging to Moore and Frieden.

He was taken to St. Elizabeth's Medical Center in Granite City, where general anesthesia was required to repair the boy's injuries due to the severity of bites to his legs and back, the suit charges.

The suit is seeking $50,000 to cover medical expenses for the boy. The dogs were destroyed after the attack.

"He was seriously mauled," said the Childs' attorney, Gregory Becker of Granite City. "He's going to have some serious scarring and/or disabilities. We won't know until he's more fully recovered."

Dakota is recovering, according to his father, Duane, and he doesn't talk much about the attack.

"He's going to have a couple of good scars to show for it," Childs said. "One on the back of his thigh and one on his buttock."

"And he gets a little nervous around dogs, especially if they are big dogs," he said.

Safety classes highlight Park District's summer offerings

Annual brochure scheduled for release in May

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

A series of hour-long classes on safety will be a new offering for summer activities in the Granite City Park District this year.

Residents will be getting the district's summer brochure sometime in May.

The brochure is changing formats this year from one page to a 16-page booklet that will include more information. "We can cover most of the extra cost by selling just a very few sponsor ads," said Director Dave Polivick.

"They won't be finished until about the middle of May," Polivick added.

Most of the distribution will be done to students in the Granite City school district.

A new offering this summer will be a series of safety classes taught by Granite City police officer Mike Sparks. The classes will be one-time sessions ranging from one to two hours.

The classes will be:

- "Safe While Home Alone," for children 6-12 years old, from 10:30 a.m. to noon, Wednesday, June 9.

Children will receive safety instructions on topics such as answering the telephone or door, visitors in the neighborhood, using electrical appliances and other issues. Parents are welcome to attend.

- "Back to School Safety," for children 6-12 years old, 10:30 a.m.-noon Wednesday, Aug. 11.

Crossing the street, confronting strangers, waiting for the school bus and other safety issues as the new school year approaches will be discussed.

- "Good Citizenship," for second through sixth grade students, 10:30-11:30 a.m., Wednesday, Aug. 4.

Children will be taught the basic responsibilities of being a good citizen. Topics include reporting crimes to parents and others in authority, participation in community projects, volunteerism and related topics.

Classes will be held at the main playground in Wilson Park. Parents are welcome to attend classes with their children.

Youth and adult classes include:

- "Adult Safety Awareness Class," for 14 years old and up, 7:00 p.m. Tuesday, June 1.

Instruction will include first-hand accounts of crimes; prevention tips will also be offered. The class is designed to make people aware.

Open for business

Crowds flock to the new Big Boy Restaurant in Granite City during its first day in business Tuesday. The eatery, which is located at the site of the old Shoney's Restaurant on Nameoki Road, is one of several former Shoney's in the St. Louis area that is under new ownership and management. A name change to Big Boy was part of the deal. The facility was remodeled and renovated, and the menu was changed slightly to reflect the switchover to the Big Boy's trademark.

A Granite City man injured when his pickup truck clipped the rear of a tractor-trailer on Interstate 270 was given a ticket.

Roy T. Taylor, 19, received tickets for failing to reduce speed to avoid an accident and following too closely, Illinois State Police said.

Taylor was westbound in his Ford F-150 near mile marker 7 between Interstate 255 and Illinois Route 111 at 4:46 p.m.

Wednesday. He attempted to pass a truck driven by Gary A. Shriner, 45, of Eldon, Mo., police said.

Taylor was thrown from the vehicle and pinned under the wreckage for a time before being taken to Anderson Hospital in Maryville. He was discharged from the hospital March 18, but it could not be determined if he was sent to another hospital or elsewhere.

Hackett allowed Nighobossian to represent the Electoral Board. Denham was eventually allowed to remain on the ballot.

A copy of that resolution was submitted by attorney Jeff Cooper — representing Pontoon Beach Police Chief Michael Crouch, who filed the suit seeking Denham's removal from the ballot — in an attempt to have Nighobossian tossed off the case, along with any motions or papers he may have filed on behalf of the Election Board.

However, the copy submitted to the court differs from the original. While neither copy has the village seal, the copy submitted by Cooper was signed by Wilson and has the vote tallied at 4-3 in favor. Rowden's copy does not have Wilson's signature and the vote is tallied at 3-3.

Rowden questioned why the two copies differed. Wilson said Polinski told him the next day to sign a copy of the resolution and send it to him and someone else, but did not name the third party.

"I took our attorney's advice; he told me to sign it," Wilson said.

That led to arguments between Rowden, Wilson and Trustee Bob Vincent. Discussion ended when Wilson said it was "over" and asked for comments from the audience.

At that time, Trustee Gus Falter gave Wilson a check for $8,500 from Tindell Construction that he said was an overpayment for work done on the village hall roof two years ago.

Falter said there have been continuing questions about the final cost and he called the contractor several weeks ago.

The cost was originally estimated at about $9,000, but a number of items were added after the roof was taken off and other problems were found. The final price was slightly more than $18,000.

Falter and Trustee Bob Vincent argued briefly over the matter.

"I wanted an itemized bill for that project, but never got it," Vincent said.

Arguments continued over the matter for several minutes.

Granite schools considering upgrading telephone system

By Mike Hall
Staff writer

The Granite City School District is considering the purchase of a new telephone system that would allow the district to have more lines of communication available within its schools.

"Our main objective is to improve communications between parents and teachers. A new system will allow us to do that," said Granite City School Superintendent Steve Balen at Tuesday night's Granite City School Board meeting.

Balen said the district would like to see the installation of computer lines through the internet so that each classroom would have access to the system. That could be done by using telephone and computer lines interchangeably.

"The new phone system would allow us to go from two lines in an elementary building to six," Balen said. "This type of communication system would help us immensely." Balen said the district has a new system it would like to purchase, but cannot at this point because it costs up to $30,000.

"It's just too expensive at this time, but we will continue to study our options and the bids we have received. Everything is on hold as of now," Balen said.

The possible purchase of the system could depend on the federal government funding the district through E-rate, a program which defrays costs of installing computer and communications lines in school districts.

"We were approved for it last year," Balen said.

The Granite City restaurant is still hiring. For employees, Gossage said the chain offers an excellent benefits package.

"We're one of the only restaurant chains on the planet that has Blue Cross and Blue Shield for our hourly employees," she said. "We also have incentive programs for our hourly employees, training an opportunity for them."

For the community, she said the company plans to be very active.

Woman's death investigated

By Mike Hill
Staff writer

The cause of death of a Granite City woman who died Friday in her home is pending toxicology results, according to officials from the Madison County Coroner's office.

Cheryl Webb, 49, of 1305 Edwardsville Road, was pronounced dead at 9:52 a.m. by Madison County Deputy Coroner Kelly Rogers. A police report indicates that foul play was not involved and suicide seemed unlikely.

Webb was found lifeless in her bed about 8:15 a.m. by her daughter, Kimberlie Dedear, who had left work because her mother had not responded to earlier phone calls.

Dedear first called her mother about 6:30 a.m. to wake her up so that she would not forget to take her granddaughter to school.

Dedear had dropped her daughter off at her mother's house Thursday night. When Dedear called her about 9 p.m. the previous evening, she was well and seemed in good spirits.

Webb had been divorced since 1994 and was somewhat distraught when her ex-husband died after the first of the year in an auto accident. The report stated, however, that despite the death of her ex-husband, she never had mentioned suicide to her daughter or to anyone in her family.

Proposed signal light triggers Granite City Council debate

By Mike Hill
Staff writer

Several aldermen had conflicting views about a proposed change of a pedestrian crosswalk to a fully signalized intersection at Tuesday night's Granite City Council meeting.

GRANITE CITY The council approved $30,000 for a signalized pedestrian crosswalk to be built at the intersection of Fehling Road and Yale Drive, near Wilson Park, in August. Recently, however, the Illinois Department of Transportation required the crosswalk to become a signalized intersection.

Fifth Ward Alderman Eddie Asadorian said he opposes such a change.

"I can't see putting a fully functional traffic light around a park," Asadorian said. "To me, that is a waste of public money."

"At least we could put a fully functional traffic light somewhere else in the city that warrants that type of traffic."

Fourth Ward Alderman Foster "Freddie" Frederick had a different opinion. He said would like to see the change.

"In warm weather, when the (Granite City Park District) pool is open, we have senior citizens that have to cross Fehling Road to get to the pool," Frederick said. "More important than that, we have hundreds and hundreds of children that live in the area. I think it well-warranted that these lights be put up."

City Engineer Joe Juneau, who listened intently to dialogue between the aldermen, addressed the council at Granite City Mayor Ron Selph's request.

Juneau explained to the aldermen that if someone wanted to cross Fehling Road or Yale Avenue, that person could do so by pushing a button. The traffic light will remain green, he said, as long as no one uses the button.

Seventh Ward Alderman Kim MacFaggart, after Juneau had finished, asked him if the Granite City Park District had been contacted.

"The Park District was in favor of it," Juneau said. "This was an issue that they had to address."

After the end of the discussion, Frederick asked the aldermen to wait until the April 6 council meeting so that they could weigh their options before making a decision.

Police Blotter

Venice Police

HOME INVASION: Three men armed with handguns kicked in the door of a Venice residence late Monday evening, told the occupant they were police and ransacked the house, apparently looking for drugs.

According to reports, officers responded to a report of a home invasion in the 1200 block of Robin Street at about 11 p.m.

The victim said she had been in the house with her two small children when she heard someone talking on the front porch. She looked through a window and saw three men, and as she entered the living room, one of the men kicked in the front door.

The three entered, displayed handguns and told her "freeze, police," according to the report. They said they were looking for money and drugs and ransacked the house. After finding nothing, they fled southbound on Robin Street to a car near the intersection of Robin and Broadway.

No further information is available.

BATTERY: Angelo Baker, 40, of the 600 block of Jefferson Street, Venice, was charged with misdemeanor battery following a March 16 incident in a Venice bar.

According to reports, on March 16, the victim said she had entered the Golden Fleece Lounge at 901 S. Fourth St. to speak to a friend, then left after a few minutes.

As she was leaving, the victim said she saw Baker and talked to him. Baker allegedly became angry and struck the victim, then kicked her.

The victim said she waited several days to report the incident because Baker had told her not to and the victim's mother finally convinced her.

The victim signed a battery complaint against Baker.

TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS: A Granite City man was charged Tuesday with numerous traffic violations after he was arrested by Madison Police. Jack A. Wilson, 31, of the 4000 block of Buena, Granite City, was charged with five counts of disobeying a stop sign and one count each of failure to stop, failure to signal, failure to wear a seat belt and driving with a suspended license.

According to reports, two officers were standing in the 900 block of Greenwood Street when one of the officers allegedly observed Wilson run a stop sign.

The officer followed Wilson and finally pulled him over in the 1500 block of 13th Street.

THE LAW AND YOU
By RICK REED
Attorney At Law
Frequently an individual will contact this office and indicate that he or she cosigned on a car note. The question that arises in these cases is with regard to the rights and obligations of a cosigner. A recent case will help illustrate the law in this area.
In this case, a father and daughter cosigned on a car note. The daughter initially kept the car and made the payments. Later, the daughter turned the car over to her father, and he agreed to make all future payments.
During the entirety of this transaction, the title to the car was in both names and the lender maintained a lien on the title. Furthermore, the lender never removed the daughter's name from the car note when she turned it over to her father.
Eventually the father quit making payments on the car when he fell on hard times. He ultimately filed bankruptcy. The daughter was never made aware that her father quit making payments, and in fact, she assumed that the car note was current. When the daughter applied for a new loan to purchase a subsequent car, she found out that the first car had been repossessed and that the repossession appeared on her credit record. Furthermore, she was informed that she was still responsible for the first note since her father filed bankruptcy and discharged his obligation.
What lesson can be learned from this case? In the first place, cosigners are equally responsible on a note. So one should exercise caution as to whom he cosigns with. Secondly, if one cosigner files bankruptcy or allows the collateral to be repossessed, the other cosigner could wind up "holding the bag." Therefore, the actions of one cosigner can affect the credit rating of the other cosigner. Deciding to cosign on a loan is obviously a major decision which should be undertaken cautiously.

She also compiled a history book for the city's centennial celebrations in 1996.

Sister Mary Thomas Jirach, Chairman of the St. Elizabeth Medical Center Board of Directors since 1984, Jirach began working in this area as a teacher in St. Mark's Catholic School in Venice. She also serves on the board of Catholic Charities and Providence Occupational Health.

Charles E. King, who retired from Granite City Steel in 1992, saw his support serve as a catalyst in securing the former Granite City High School North building for the college. He also served as general chairman of the city's centennial celebrations and was honored that year with the Tri-Cities Citizens Achievement Award.

Leo H. Konzen: A partner with Lueders, Robertson & Konzen, he has been a practicing attorney in Granite City since 1963 and has supported efforts to improve the community throughout his career. In 1973, he chaired the committee studying and recommending which college district the Tri-Cities area should join and later served on the committee that secured the former Granite City North building as the college's new home. He also served a partial term on the BAC Board of Trustees.

Walter C. Milton Sr.: His efforts include originating the Granite City DARE and Snowball drug awareness education programs, as well as working with youth through the Granite City Rotary and the Chamber of Commerce.

Milton served on the committee creating GCC. He has also been a long-time supporter of the BAC Foundation.

Randall Robertson: A partner in the law firm Lueders, Robertson & Konzen, he played significant roles in the annexation of the village of Nameoki, creation of the school district and passage of the Wilson Park Ice Rink bond issue. He also helped enact legislation creating the Tri-City Regional Port District and has served as its attorney for 33 years.

Rebecca Slate: Best known for her commitment to the Granite City Business and Professional Women's Club, she has been a member since 1964 and served as president for two years. Under her leadership, the club was recognized as Club of the Year for District 14 both years. Upon retiring after 30 years with the federal government, Slate was named coordinator/director of volunteers at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, a position she held until 1996. She is still a volunteer at the hospital and is chairman of the Auxiliary's Scholarship Committee.

Melvin C. Williams: The former chairman and president of Magna Bank of Madison County (now Union Planters Bank), he has worked on a number of community projects. He has been active on the Advisory Board of SEMC since 1989 and helped establish the St. Elizabeth Health Foundation.

He has also served as past drive chairman of the Tri-Cities Area United Way, committee member of the 1990 Civil Justice Reform Act Advisory Group, a past board member of Leadership Council Southwestern Illinois, vice chairman of the Granite City Centennial Celebration and a board member of Solid Schermer, along with his brothers Leo and Stan, built a grocery business from two employees to 50 and spent much of his time working for the community. Mathias, who retired as assistant vice president of Illinois Power in 1987, was consistently promoting the concept of regional cooperation between Madison and St. Clair counties and the St. Louis area.

Daubach involved in critical spring with Red Sox

One of the appeals of major league baseball's spring training is that it is the time of the year when hope springs eternal.

For Brian Daubach of Belleville, this spring training will determine whether he will be a big leaguer.

He knows that. The Boston Red Sox organization knows it. The Florida Marlins, who released him in November even though he was their minor league player of the year in 1998, know it. Everyone who has seen other 27-year-old "rookies" in camps in Florida and Arizona know it.

Consider that Daubach led the Class AAA International League in runs batted in (124), home runs (35), doubles (45), extra base hits (84) and slugging percentage (.634) and the Marlins' move seems strange.

Yet, here's the catch: Even though the 6-foot-1, 201-pound first baseman/outfielder had three hits — including a ringing double against Philadelphia's Curt Schilling — in his September call to the majors, last-place Florida considered him a defensive liability.

It is no wonder why the former Belleville West standout, drafted in the 19th round in 1990 by the New York Mets, just might find a home in the American League — which also is the home of the designated hitter.

A right-handed thrower but a left-handed hitter, Daubach could have accepted a huge bonus to play in the Japanese League, but he hit in the wrong place at the right time this past winter.

While playing for Boston coach Dave Jauss in the Dominican Republic, Daubach hit two home runs in one playoff game to help Licey win the Dominican championship.

Thanks to Jauss, shortly after the New York Yankees offered Daubach a minor league contract, the Red Sox came forward with an offer that put Daubach on the spring training roster and a chance for more.

"He has left-handed power all over," Jauss said. "I think Fenway Park (the Red Sox home park) will help him."

Even in hindsight, Florida had praise for Daubach. Marlins farm director Dan Lunetta said, "He's got good power to all fields, a spray hitter. Offensively, I don't think anyone questioned his bat."

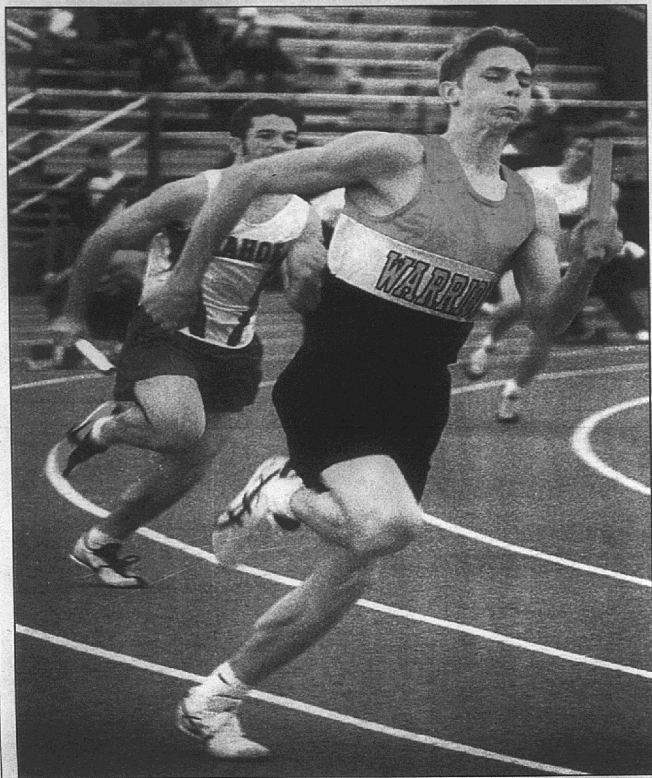

How could they? Last season, Daubach never was hitless for more than six consecutive at-bats. He increased his RBI, double and triple totals for the third straight season and averaged 28 home runs per season during that stretch.

Will he do the same while being tested at first base, right field and DH with Boston? Early indications are yes, in the form of 8-for-20 hitting in his first 12 spring games. He has produced a game-winning home run and a game-breaking two-run triple.

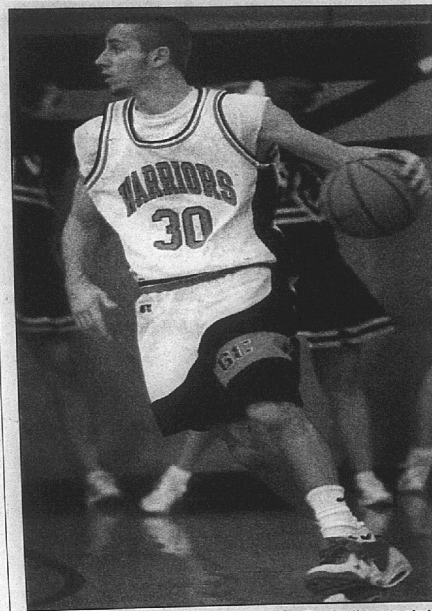

"He can hit," Jauss said. "And he can learn to hit more with (Red Sox hitting coach) Jim Rice around and some of the veterans we've got here."

Injuries and the loss of Mo Vaughn may open a roster spot for Daubach. Meanwhile, Red Sox people are making comparisons to a guy named Wade Boggs, who is closing in on 3,000 hits after once being labeled a "career minor leaguer."

Granite City's Jim Treakle competes in a relay race Monday against Collinsville. The Warriors boys dropped a 39-33 decision.

Impact player

Granite City junior Kevin Elliott will make the transition from winter sports to spring, where he will be a key member of the Warriors baseball team. Elliott played with the varsity baseball team last spring as a sophomore. His emergence in center field helped the Warriors win 14 of their last 19 games to surpass the 500 mark for the year at 17-16. "After we did that, it seemed to solidify our defense," Granite City coach Gus Lignoul said. "We made a lot of improvements from the beginning to the end of last year." The Warriors will try to build off that strong finish for another rugged Southwestern Conference campaign. They open the 1999 season Saturday at home against Washington, Mo.

Granite City varsity boys lost; JV teams, girls varsity victorious

By Rick Broome

Granite City's track team competed on the frozen tundra of Collinsville's track Monday.

PREP TRACK
The cold weather caused the athletes serious misery and even prompted the cancellation of the high jump. But the Warriors fought through the elements and took victory at three of four levels.

"The weather wasn't real cooperative, it was a little bit cool and a little bit wet. We had a drizzle most of the evening," Granite City coach Gene Briggs said. "But we are used to practicing in those conditions. We find a way to run outside even on inclement days. We do practice in that weather so it didn't effect us as far as mentally approaching the meet. We went ahead and did the best we could under the conditions we had. The times may not have been the greatest, and that may be a reflection of the conditions, but the effort was definitely there."

"We were real happy with the results. We won three out of four levels. The only level we didn't win was boys' varsity. We were outscored there 39-33, but all the other levels we were ahead on points."

"The Granite City boys' junior varsity team won 39-33. The girls' varsity team won 32-21. The Warriors' varsity girls' team won 32-21."

performances certainly aren't what we would expect by midseason, they were adequate and compared to the other team, we did OK," Briggs said. "We were happy with our performance."

"We did have a number of firsts in the girls. Our 4x100 relay team was first, our 4x800 relay team was first and our 4x400 relay team was first. Individually we also took first in the 1,600-meter run (Penny Meyer) and first in the long jump (Nicole Bellman). We had some second-places in the individual events as well. Warriors pitching staff will be tested this spring

Granite City fields young hurlers but has experience in field and throughout lineup

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

The Granite City baseball team had almost two entirely different seasons last spring.

PREP BASEBALL
The Warriors now will try to carry the momentum of a 14-5 mark in its last 19 games of 1998.

"Last year we finished 17-16," Granite City coach Gus Lignoul said. "At one point in the season, we were 3-11 and we made a couple of changes. In center field we brought up Kevin Elliott — he was a sophomore — and we moved Brian Kamadulski in to play shortstop. After we did that, it seemed to solidify our defense. We had played very poorly defensively early in the year. Our pitching was good enough last year, with (Dustin) Brewer and (Paul) Kacera and John Kelly. Brewer was drafted by the (Baltimore) Orioles, Kacera is playing baseball at Lewis & Clark (Community) College. So our pitching was good enough, but defensively we played very poor in the first half and then we played very good in the second half."

"We made a lot of improvements from the beginning to the end of last year. We finished 500 in the conference, 6-8, so outside of the conference we did fairly well."

This spring, the Warriors have experience in the field and in the lineup but they will send a lot of fresh meat to the mound. The pitching staff's ability to adjust likely will determine the success of the season.

"We have a lot of kids who played last year who were juniors, with the exception of the pitching position," Lignoul said. "Coach (Darren) Dewep and I were looking at some things today and we only have 40 innings of pitching experience from the people that we have on the staff this year going into the season. So that's not very much."

"Last year, we had some guys with Brewer, Kacera and Kelly, those three guys threw most of the innings. It was good, but it put us in a hole a little bit for this year."

The Warriors' pitchers should be able to rely on solid defense and a productive lineup.

"This year we have a lot of kids with experience coming back," Lignoul said. "I would expect that offensively we are going to be better than we were last year. Defensively I think we are going to be better than last year because of Devon Mayes playing shortstop for us. That was a trouble spot for us last year. He is a junior and he is looking very good. He's very smooth mechanically, he does a nice job. He is going to be one of our leaders, so that is going to help us out. We have all of our outfield back with (Teddy) Millas and (Sean) Courtney and Elliott."

"We only have 40 innings of pitching experience from the people that we have on the staff this year going into the season. So that's not very much."

"Where we are going to be tested the most is at the pitching position. Our lack of pitching experience, plus the kind of pitchers we are going to be going up against in the Southwestern Conference, is going to make it tough. There are some outstanding pitchers, like (Ken) Lutz at Collinsville, (Adam) Dodd at West. We are going to face some people who are awfully, awfully good."

"It's the same old thing, same as every year, we are going to be as good as our pitching is, and this year our pitching is going to be the area where we have to show the most improvement."

The Warriors still are determining the members of the staff.

"The way it looks right now is that Sean Courtney is going to be one of those kids," Lignoul said. "He is a senior. Dustin Murphy is going to be one of them; he is a senior. Steve Ward, who's also a senior, a left-hander, will be one and the other kid we are going to count really heavily on is Scott Shorten, who is a junior right-hander. He's about 6-foot-2, 180 pounds. Those four kids are going to have to carry the load. And then the other four kids we have are Teddy Millas, Devon Mayes, Jason Newman and Chris Havron. So we have eight kids, but just the three seniors and not very much experience."

The defensive nine should prove to have less work in development.

"Kevin Elliott will come back and play center field," Lignoul said. "Teddy Millas will come back and play left field for us — he played left field last year. Sean Courtney

Granite City wins three of four levels at Collinsville

100-meter hurdles and in the long jump (Amber Ridgeway), and second place in the triple jump (Sarah Kuehnell). So placing that well in that many events is what allowed the girls to be successful at the varsity level."

The Granite City boys also had some highlights.

The Warriors had first-place finishes in the 4x800 relay, the 1,600-meter run (Dennis Davis), the discus (Joe Laird), the long jump and the triple jump (Earl Clark). Also, the Warriors had second-place showings in 1600-meter run (Jerry Curtis) and the 110-meter hurdles (Steven Schroeder) and a third place in the shot put (Jeff Hard).

"Probably if we could have done a little better with our relays or maybe gotten a couple more second or third places in the open events, we might have been able to score enough points to win in the boys varsity," Briggs said.

"But it was close, we were competitive, and once again we were happy with the effort."

Warriors hurdler Aaron Howard was injured early in the meet. He dropped to the track near the finish line and grabbed his knee after landing limbs akimbo.

"When he came over the last hurdle he was attempting to go faster so he could beat one of the other competitors," Briggs said. "In his effort to speed up, he landed incorrectly and as his foot was planted wrong he twisted his knee. He has been evaluated and he is going to be fine; it's just a twisted knee. It will take him a couple of days to heal, but he should be back by the end of the week. It seemed pretty bad, but it was just the pain of the moment. He's OK."

The Warriors head to Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville on Saturday for their next meet, the Southwestern Illinois Relays.

"It is the only meet, as far as invitations, that we go to all year with both boys and girls at the same place," Briggs said. "We do look forward to that. It gives us a chance early in the season to have our whole coaching staff there, have all of our top athletes there and get to work with them in one day at one meet at the same time. So it is a benefit at the beginning of the season to have this relay. We are looking forward to it."

Collinsville armed for shot at conference title

By Brian Bretsch
Staff writer

The deciding factor in the race for the Southwestern Conference baseball title once again may be pitching.

PREP BASEBALL
That bodes well for the Collinsville baseball team. The Kahoks are loaded with pitching and another 20-victory season seems likely for the program, which has a combined 75-25 record over the last three seasons.

"I like their attitude," Collinsville coach Steve McFall said. "I will tell you that they have come in with a different attitude this year. Their work ethic is extremely, extremely good right now."

McFall, who enters his 10th season as the Kahoks coach and sports a 193-83 record, senses the expectations for this year's team. But he also is cautious about the rest of the league.

"I like how our staff stacks up," McFall said.

Senior Kenny Lutz again will be Collinsville's No. 1 starter this season. A year ago, Lutz was 19-2 with a 2.09 earned run average in 80% innings. He pitched 10 complete games and struck out 107 while allowing just 24 bases on balls. Lutz came into spring practices off sixth-place finish in the 215-pound division at the IHSA Class AA state wrestling tournament. He did that despite missing two weeks of wrestling season to play baseball during the holiday break. Lutz played in Australia as a member of the Texas Rangers Baseball Academy Team.

Senior Dan Munoz, who only recorded one inning of work at the high school level last year but pitched well for the Collinsville American Legion team, will join the Kahoks rotation in the spring.

Munoz will get more looks for his offense — he batted .528 last year.

Lutz will get looks as a hard-throwing right-hander and a power-hitting first baseman. He hit .509 last year with 12 home runs and 54 RBIs.

Another returning member of the pitching staff is senior righty Charlie Johnson. Johnson struggled to start the 1998 season before finishing with a 5-3 mark. Johnson posted a 3.90 ERA with 52 strikeouts in 52 innings of work.

Joining the pitching mix will be Justin Clayton, who saw limited action last year as a sophomore. Clayton appeared in three games, posting a 1-0 mark in 8% innings of work.

Collinsville senior Kenny Lutz was 10-2 last season with a 2.09 ERA and 107 strikeouts in 80% innings. He and Charlie Johnson return to lead the Kahoks pitching staff.

Warriors' inexperienced pitching staff will be tested will play the outfield when he isn't pitching.

"We've got Elliot Dyne, who played third base for us all last year. He only hit about .255, but he hit about eight or 10 balls that couldn't have been hit any harder that were right at people, so if everything comes out for him he should be able to put up a pretty good offensive year."

"Then we have Matt Mercer and Tony Komoromi, who are both seniors and both catchers, and right now those two kids are just battling it out for that position. Overall they are pretty equal and I think probably what we will do is just ride the hot hand there and see how that goes that way."

"Dustin Murphy will play first base and the outfield when he is not pitching. We have a junior, Matt Pistorius, he's a big, strong kid who is very athletic and has that perfect lefthanded swing. We are looking for big things from him. He could end up being very, very good offensively with the bat.

"At second base we have a senior, Jason Acorn. Jason only had a few at-bats last year as a junior because Scott Smalley played in front of him and Scott hit .424 last year, so Jason found it to be pretty tough. But he was a leader on the team, even though he didn't get to play very much, he has a great attitude and works real hard at it. He'll get a chance at second base. We have a couple of reserve infielders. Jeff Schlick can play third base and second base. Jason Fernandez can play shortstop, Aaron Holbeck can play second base, and all three of those kids are juniors, so this year will be a year where they are going to have to prepare themselves to get the opportunity to play next year."

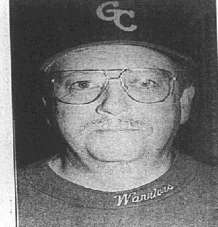

The Warriors expect a real test from their foes in the Southwestern Conference.

"The thing about playing baseball in the Southwestern Conference is that this is an excellent, excellent baseball conference. It may be the best baseball conference south of Chicago," Lignoul said. "When you have to play Collinsville, both Belleville schools, Edwardsville, Alton — If you are not prepared and you don't play as well as you can play and eliminate your mistakes, you could lose every conference game. That's how good baseball is in this conference."

"I looked around last year and I counted I think five kids in the big leagues that at one time had played in the Southwestern Conference. We are going to have to play absolutely the best we can play when we play those conference games. We always have a lot of success when we get outside the conference. Hopefully, there are a couple of teams that we can beat twice and then if we can split with everybody else, I think that gives us a chance. Nobody is going to win all 12 games in this conference, but you are going to have to win nine or 10 in order to be in the hunt. If you can't do that, if somebody there beats you twice, then basically you are out of it. We have our hands full, especially with the pitching that this conference has. We are going to have to play very well."

The Warriors open the season noon Saturday at home against Washington, Mo. "The thing is that these kids have worked real hard, they have a great attitude," Lignoul said. "They have worked hard every day in practice. We have emphasized just getting a little better every day and they are working at it. I think we will be all right, it's just going to depend on how well we are going to compete against the good teams. That will determine whether we have a good year or a great year."

A Night at The Prom

Granite City High School's Student Council recently held its annual Senior Citizens Prom for Granite City seniors at the GCHS cafeteria. The night features the usual trappings of a traditional high school formal dance, complete with live music, sit-down dinner and other entertainment. Tickets are provided to area senior groups and organizations as a community-service project. Clockwise from above, seniors and students mingle during the dinner portion of the event; GCHS Student Council members Sarah Harris, center, and Jessica Worthen serve dinner to a senior; and the band Four of a Kind belts out swing-era tunes for participants' dining and dancing pleasure.

Volunteers bring Love on a Leash to seniors and patients

By Kim Wright

Some of the cuddly furballs known as man's best friend are bringing therapeutic smiles and motivation to patients all over the St. Louis area. Love On A Leash, with its visiting pets and canine drill team, is an all-volunteer, non-profit organization that brings therapeutic entertainment to nursing homes, retirement homes, homeless shelters and hospitals in the St. Louis area. "There's just something about the love of animals that really brings out the best in people," said Janice Mitchell, founder of the St. Louis chapter of Love On A Leash. Orthopedic therapists at the Barnes-Jewish West County Hospital, Skilled Nursing Unit have found that it is easier to get some of their patients to do their exercises when the dogs are around. "It gets the patients to do stuff they normally wouldn't do," said Virginia Molitor, activities director. "I can't explain it, but it helps a lot." The dogs help because when patients play with them they are often doing their exercises without even realizing it, Molitor said. "It boosts their morale. Their faces just light up," Molitor said. Mitchell, a Maryland Heights resident, was the only member when she started the St. Louis chapter of Love On A Leash three years ago. The organization has grown to 36 people, 48 dogs, four cats and one bird. "I had read about therapy dogs and decided I wanted to do this. It tugged at my heart strings and I absolutely enjoy it," Mitchell said. A large portion of the organization came together after its members had completed an obedience class together, said Sandy Murphy, Love On A Leash participant. "We started doing research on obedience programs and decided Love On A Leash was good for us," she said. All of the pets are screened for personality and temperament and are certified as therapy animals. Dogs have to pass a canine good citizens test before becoming part of the team. All dogs go through a minimum of three observations before joining the group.

"There's just something about the love of animals that really brings out the best in people."

Janice Mitchell
Love on a Leash founder

All the animals are individually owned. Many of them are rescued dogs from shelters. Many of the animals are part of the drill team, which is synchronized obedience with the dogs. "We usually make our entrance to the Seven Dwarfs'

'Hi-Ho' song. It shows people we had some preparation before we came," Murphy said. During the performance, trainers take time out to introduce the dogs and demonstrate some of the tricks the dogs can perform.

Zoo trains now 'back on track'

By Sonia Ahuja
Staff writer

The St. Louis Zoo's miniature railroad will have additional crew members on board this year.

ST. LOUIS

The Zooline Railroad opened

Saturday, marking the beginning of Zooline's 36th season of operation.

A fireman will now ride along with the engineer in the engine of each train, said Bill Boever, zoo assistant director. A conductor will remain at the back of each train.

Last October, engineer John Forsythe, 67, was killed after the train he was operating derailed. The train ran off the tracks and the engine overturned.

It was the first employee fatality at the zoo.

The position of fireman was added this season as an extra safety precaution.

"(The fireman) is there in case an additional pair of hands is needed for assisting with the train's operation," Boever said.

An investigation conducted by zoo officials into what caused October's accident found the train's engine had no mechanical problems.

"We were never able to pinpoint any mechanical defects with the train," Boever said.

He said the train was tested going at six times the speed it normally does and the train's main brake stopped the train.

Boever said an autopsy on Forsythe's body indicated nothing unusual — such as a heart attack or stroke — that may have led Forsythe to lose control.

The train has a second hand brake in addition to a main hand brake. Boever said the second hand brake had not been used when the train derailed last year.

The train's tour lasts 20 minutes and takes passengers through tunnels and animal exhibits on a 1.5-mile round trip.

Tickets are $3.

Upsets reign at Academy Awards

'Shakespeare in Love' bests
'Private Ryan' for best picture

In a night of surprises and upsets, the romantic comedy "Shakespeare in Love" won seven Academy Awards on Sunday, including best picture and best actress for Gwyneth Paltrow. Steven Spielberg's bloody World War II epic "Saving Private Ryan" won the prize for directing and four other Oscars.

"Am I allowed to say I really wanted this?" Spielberg joked as he accepted his second directing Oscar. His first was for "Schindler's List" in 1993.

Roberto Benigni, as an Italian Jew shielding his son from the horrors of the Holocaust in "Life Is Beautiful," stunned the audience by becoming the first star of a foreign film to win as best actor. The tragi-comic film, which Benigni also wrote and directed, won additional Academy Awards for foreign film and dramatic score.

"This is a terrible mistake because I used up all my English," he said, as he leapt to the stage for the second time.

The split between best picture and director marked the first time since 1989 the prizes had gone to different movies. That year, "Driving Miss Daisy" won as best "Shakespeare In Love," starring Gwyneth Paltrow and Joseph Fiennes, was named Best Picture at the 71st Academy Awards. Paltrow was named Best Actress.

picture, while Oliver Stone was named best director for "Born on the Fourth of July."

Paltrow, never before nominated, was honored for her role as the object of a young Bard's affections.

"I don't feel very deserving of this in your presence," she said, sobbing, as she named her fellow nominees.

Judi Dench, who played the imperious but fair-minded Queen Elizabeth I in "Shakespeare in Love," and James Coburn, the alcoholic, abusive father in "Affliction," won best supporting Oscars.

On the cover

"Baby Geniuses," which opened nationwide March 12, revolves around the idea that all babies are born with the knowledge of the universe and the ability to speak with each other. What adults hear as "baby talk" is actually sophisticated conversation.

This premise takes Dr. Elena Kinder (Kathleen Turner) into a scheme to crack the code to this special language. Kinder, head of a manufacturer of baby products, eventually then must chase down of her baby geniuses after he escapes from her secret lab.

Other than Benigni, Oscar telecast was dull and duller

There's an old saying that no one ever left the theater humming the scenery. But if there was anything about the Oscarcast worth singing about, it was the set.

That, and Roberto Benigni. In fact, among mere mortals on hand Sunday, the excitable, ecstatic writer-director-star of "Life Is Beautiful" was almost the sole salvation of "The 71st Annual Academy Awards."

Could this year's telecast have been any duller?

Only if the Italian superstar hadn't been on hand to accept two Oscars in his rapid-fire, euphoric broken English.

"I want to kiss everybody," he exalted after stepping from seat-back to seat-back to reach the stage for his best foreign language film trophy.

A little while later, the Oscar cast got another welcome jolt when Benigni returned to claim the best actor award: "I would like to be Jupiter and kidnap everybody," he bubbled, "and lie down in the firmament making love with everybody!" Who knows what would have gone on had he won a third?

Otherwise, the broadcast, which ABC aired live from Los Angeles' Dorothy Chandler Pavilion, was rated ZZZ. And that couldn't all be blamed on its record-breaking length: 4 hours, 2 minutes. The show was just dull.

The setting sure wasn't, though. Did it look like a rotunda dome?

A lunar module?

A huge, glorious umbrella?

Even the drama surrounding Elia Kazan's life achievement award thudded to an anticlimax.

"More than anybody, he inspired us," said Robert De Niro three long hours into the broadcast. De Niro had joined director Martin Scorsese to present the award, an object of bitter debate between admirers of the great director and those who denounced him for naming colleagues four decades ago in a government investigation of communist influence on Hollywood.

"Thank you all very much," said the 89-year-old Kazan. "I think I can just slip away."

And that was that.

In her third turn as host, Whoopi Goldberg had little new to offer. Hers was the same tacky, self-satisfied display she had visited on the Oscarcast before.

Her appearances in various Oscar-related costumes, beginning with the finery of Queen Elizabeth (not to mention her wearing white-face), should have been funny. But Goldberg has a fixation on bodily functions and rude double entendres that reduces her act to the level of a naughty 8-year-old.

Early on, she made a pun on "we ... we."

Later on, she made a pun about leaks.

Observing that William Shakespeare has had a good year at the movies, she purred suggestively, "Little Willie is very large."

After one of such wisecracks, Goldberg made a cackling reference to past Oscarcast host Billy Crystal. "You're missin' Billy just about now — aincha?"

If you only knew, Whoopi.

Historical society plans to honor fort site

By Barb Ponder
Correspondent

More than two years had passed and the men still had not returned.

Talk around the fort was that they were probably dead, fallen to the perils of the uncharted territory to the west. After all, Zebulon Pike had traveled to the headwaters of the Mississippi and returned in only about six months. So when Meriwether Lewis and William Clark finally reappeared at Fort Belle Fontaine, there was a booming celebration.

"They landed and fired cannon salute to the fort and the fort returned the salute in kind," said Ronald Brunnett, adding that Clark had recorded the Sept. 22, 1806, homecoming in his journal.

Fort Belle Fontaine, within St. Louis County's Coldwater Creek Park in North County, closed in 1826 and today exists only in artifacts. That this North County landmark, the first Indian trading post and American fort west of the Mississippi, is remembered at all is due largely to the efforts of the Fort Belle Fontaine Historical Society. The society, which Brunnett of St. Charles founded, prompted the University of Missouri-St. Louis in 1992 to conduct the first dig at the fort site.

"We've had a dig there almost every year since then," said Brunnett, the society's historian. "The UMSL and Washington University archaeology departments have assisted us."

The group now is garnering corporate and individual contributions for the installation of three signs at Coldwater Creek, said John Flanders, its president. The markers would outline Lewis and Clark's route to the Pacific Ocean and provide information about the expedition and Fort Belle Fontaine.

The proposal is part of a project to mark the entire Lewis and Clark trail, which the National Park Service and the Lewis and Clark Trail Heritage Foundation hope to complete by 2004, the bicentennial of the trip.

Flanders of Florissant said the National Park Service estimates the cost of the signage at $15,000 and it has committed $7,500. St. Louis County officials have pledged labor and resources to the project.

The historical society needs about $3,750 for the signage, a third of which it already has obtained through craft fairs and other fund raising activities, Flanders said.

"Right now we think, with any kind of luck, we will have them ready for installation late this year or early next year," Flanders said.

Eventually, Brunnett and Flanders would like to see the fort, which headquartered the U.S. Army for the West, at least partially reconstructed. After all, many of the forts which sprung from Fort Belle Fontaine—including Fort Osage in Missouri, Fort Snelling in South Dakota and Fort Crawford in Wisconsin—have been researched and reconstructed, Brunnett said.

Barnes Bradshaw, who worked with the group while director of the Bissell House Museum, credits the society with raising awareness about the site.

"This one was the father of many early American forts but it was simply forgotten as time went on," said Bradshaw, who is now recreation supervisor at the Afton White-Rodgers Community Center.

Fort Belle Fontaine and Bissell, built in 1812, are tied together in history because General Daniel Bissell was a commander there. Some visitors to the fort site are disappointed because there are no visual reminders of the fort, Flanders said.

"It loses the imagination of some people," he said. "They go out there and look and don't see anything relevant to the fort and they think 'so what.' But if there is something they can see it gets their interest up."

The army built the fort there partly because the location, at the confluence of Coldwater

Creek and the Missouri River, offered a harbor, said John Flanders' wife, Linde. A spring-fed fountain in the river also provided a fresh water source.

"The fountain is just below the Grand Staircase and can only be viewed when the Missouri River is kind of low," she said.

The limestone Grand Staircase, where the Lewis and Clark markers would be placed, was constructed between about 1938 and 1940 through the Works Progress Administration (WPA). The administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt enacted the WPA to provide work after the Depression of the early 1930s.

Fort site may

The WPA gave grants to cities to establish parks outside of their city limits.

One of the parks that St. Louis County developed was Coldwater Creek at the north end of Bellefontaine Road.

"The WPA project is breathtaking," said Linde Flanders. "I really feel like with a little development out there that county park would be the crown jewel, not only of North County, but of the entire park system."

To visit the park, one must drive through the Missouri Hills Campus, a state youth facility. Built about 1913, the campus once housed a boys' orphanage, where trades, farming and other skills were taught.

"It's one little piece of land that has more history to it than any place else in the county," Brenner said of the area. "A whole series of things have happened there — prehistoric to historical activities."

The Fort Belle Fontaine Historical Society numbers about 103 members, with about 40 actively participating. The Flanders are among several members of the group who don historical garb for events including reenactments and the annual open house at the fort site.

This year's open house will be from noon to 4 p.m. June 27. During the event members discuss the site and conduct tours.

"We incorporate not just the fort historic site but the school site and the WPA project," Linde Flanders said. "We try to give them a time line so they understand how that whole area evolved."

The society also helps support the Bissell House Museum, now closed for renovations, where it operates a gift shop.

For information about the sign project or the Fort Belle Fontaine Historical Society, call John or Linde Flanders at 837-7815.

Famous birthdays recalled

Trivia

Kevin Carbery

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

As of Wednesday, I've logged 37 years in this vale of tears.

March 24 is not a bad day for a birthday. It's not too close to a major holiday. I always felt sorry for the poor kids who were handed presents and told, "This is for Christmas and your birthday."

A drawback to having your celebration at this time of year is the weather. I'd receive a present such as a kite or a baseball glove and, inevitably, it would be raining. When you're a kid and you get a gift, you want to play with it right now.

I share my birthday with two major figures from St. Louis sports teams. One is Larry Wilson, the Hall of Fame safety for the football Cardinals, who was born in 1938. The other is Garry Templeton, the baseball Cardinal shortstop who looked like he was headed for the Hall of Fame after his first three or four seasons. He was born in 1956. Whenever I bought sports cards, one of the first things I would look for was date of birth.

There are not many entertainment celebrities who share my birthday. Lara Flynn Boyle is probably the most impressive name on the list. The late Norman Fell also was born on March 24, but he's gone now.

I guess my favorite birthday was in 1983, when I turned 21. Many bars will give you a free drink on your 21st birthday and I took advantage of plenty of the establishments in Columbia, Mo. It was a good thing for me that I was on foot that evening.

For this week's trivia, the topic is on birthdays and mat

Opera House advocates plan event

Concert Sunday will benefit renovation

By Clayton Berry
Staff writer

A group trying to revive the Kiel Opera House as a performing arts center is using music to further its cause. Kiel-For Performing Arts will conduct a concert at a downtown church to raise money for its efforts to renovate and reopen the landmark on Market Street. The show is slated for 2 p.m. on Sunday at St. John's Catholic Church, 16th and Chestnut streets.

Group members hope patrons will donate at least $10 at the door to take in live classical and popular sounds. "We are trying to emphasize the whole idea of renovating Kiel Opera House and reopening it as a performing arts center," said Russell Carter, the group's historian. This is the fourth concert conducted by the group. Thus far, about $13,000 has been raised. More than that, Ed Golterman, president of Kiel-For Performing Arts, said he believes the events are raising awareness for the group's goals. "Public support is growing very, very strong," Golterman said.

The group conducts the concerts on the last Sunday of every month. The venue alternates between St. John's and Centenary United Methodist Church, 16th and Olive streets. For more information, call 421-3136.

Russell said the group needs funding to apply for grants and to complete engineering and financial studies. Administrative and promotional costs also need to be covered.

"Because we have started as a grass-roots organization, we don't come in built in with funding," Russell said. "We've been essentially operating on a shoestring."

Kiel-For Performing Arts formed last fall, shortly after an expert panel convened by the city deemed the Opera House an infeasible venue for concerts.

Horoscope

THURSDAY, MARCH 25
The moon transits into exciting and glamorous Leo, turning the heat up on the ever-revolving spotlight. Be sure and take your turn if you want a shot at the extra money, love and attention that drifts toward work well done (and well hyped). Intimacy issues are ignored since our public selves are suddenly preferred over our inner selves.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY
(March 25) The future looks brighter than you thought possible. Your career is the strongest focus through the spring — and travel for business increases profits and prestige. Open savings and pursue safe investments in May. Your love life is complex, and many decisions must be made in the summer. Love with a Libra or Virgo is passionate and sexy. A promotion is granted before your next birth day.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
You've practically become a celebrity overnight. Let your ambition guide you. New developments in buying and selling look promising. Shop around carefully before committing. A Gemini presents a host of opportunities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
When someone spends quality time with you, honor the gesture as if it were an expensive gift. News about an ex could rock your world, so plan a fun-filled and somewhat selfish weekend. Tarnished reputations can be repaired.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)
Remain firm in a romantic decision. Seek out opinions from those who know you well. Make contact with an insecure mate, and let him or her know you care. Be honest and direct when discussing your feelings.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)
Busy, popular people surround you — and you may lead the bunch to a group accomplishment. Get errands and short trips out of the way; you find a new possibility for your heart. Prepare for surprise business to come through.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
You are growing more effective and could experience some pangs due to this positive change. Children's needs are emphasized. Let intuition guide you, especially when it comes to financial matters.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
If you exceed a budget, try not to punish yourself, but realize that it could have been avoided. Stop feeling like a financial victim! Pay close attention to signals from a supervisor. Try to articulate those vague but brilliant ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Others may paint a sad picture, but your job is not to be the savior — contribute only what you don't need. Passion fires continue to grow hotter. A lingering financial issue demands more than lip service.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) Take better care of what you own — invest that bonus. Creativity is very strong; express yourself in writing or through art. Though a family member tries to hold you back, you're determined to be free.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Take the lead, as you continue to know what's in the best interest of all. There is no room for self-doubt. Romance in the workplace isn't ideal, though strong impulses make you believe otherwise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll get rave reviews for detailed work — money follows. New alliances will make it impossible for you to lose out in important assignments or events. Ask for more than what you think you'll get.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Show that you can hold your own; prove that you're motivated. Spiritual insights make life a bit easier. Family obligations bring joy. You receive positive attention when you least expect it. A Gemini understands you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) There's new friendship with one you don't immediately understand; it's unusual when insight fails you, but you're mystified now. You may overhear insider investment information. The evening brings a plan for profit.

Oscar boost can't totally protect movie studio

An Oscar can jump-start a career, boost box office or get its director, producer or stars a better table at the hottest restaurant.

But it can't protect a movie studio from going belly up.

Three studios and one production-acquisition house with films receiving Academy Award nominations this year are either dead or face uncertain futures, the result of corporate upheaval in the movie business.

PolyGram Films and its specialty label Gramercy Pictures have an armload of Oscar nominations: Gramercy's "Elizabeth" with seven nominations including best picture and PolyGram's "What Dreams May Come" with two nominations for its stunning visuals.

But after Seagram Co. purchased the PolyGram parent PolyGram NV, the domestic distribution offices of PolyGram Films are being shut and foreign operations melded into Seagram-owned Universal Studios. Gramercy is likely to be sold or folded into another studio, perhaps Universal's specialty label, October Films.

That is if October Films stays in the Seagram family. October, whose "Hilary and Jackie" picked up nominations for actresses Emily Watson and Rachel Griffiths, is another candidate to be sold.

Meantime, most of the operations of long-struggling Largo Entertainment, which produced "Affliction," were closed by its corporate parent, JVC Entertainment of Japan, just days before two of its actors, Nick Nolte and James Coburn, received Academy Award nominations for best actor and supporting actor.

For the most part, the back-room turmoil won't be evident on the screen. The films will remain in release, with vigorous advertising and Oscar campaigns. The executives who got the boot will probably get new jobs and, this being Hollywood, higher pay.

But it does give some insight into how things work in the movie industry — to a degree how they've always worked — in this community that novelist Budd Schulberg likened nearly 60 years ago in "What Makes Sammy Run?" to a gold rush boom town whose chief products are movies, ambition and fear.

"It is bittersweet," said Barr Potter, Largo's chairman and chief executive, who will remain at the company to help with the shutdown. "It's just an example of the extremes that one goes through in this business."

"It is bittersweet. It's just an example of the extremes that one goes through in this business."

It was, perhaps, worse in the early 1990s, before the start of a Hollywood economic surge. Consider that the 1991 best-picture winner was "The Silence of the Lambs," whose producers picked up the Oscars while the film's studio, Orion, was in the throes of bankruptcy. The movie also won Oscars for director Jonathan Demme, co-stars Anthony Hopkins and Jodie Foster and screenwriter Ted Tally. But with the Hollywood economy showing signs of cooling, and movie production costs continuing to soar, fear and uncertainty are as strong as they have been in years. Many studios, worried about staking too much on a single picture, are entering into financial partnerships with competitors.

"These kinds of deals are done with more and more frequency," said Miramax West Coast President Mark Gill, whose studio's best-picture nominee "Shakespeare in Love" is being financed and released in a partnership with Universal Studios. "The rivalries are put aside, frankly, to moderate risk."

Between the co-production deals and the shifting corporate ownership of studios and their art house divisions, lines are now blurred all over the Hollywood map. It isn't always clear who should get credit — or who will be around this time tomorrow.

Consider the tale of this season's second costume drama, about the behind-the-scenes intrigue during the reign of England's Queen Elizabeth, has plenty of its own real-life drama behind it. "Elizabeth" began life as a Working Title production for the Dutch-owned film and music company PolyGram NV, the same producer-studio partnership behind the Oscar-nominated "Four Weddings and a Funeral."

Produced for about $22 million, "Elizabeth" was distributed through PolyGram's Gramercy Pictures, which handles lower-budget, artier films. After becoming a hit last September in the United Kingdom, the film came to the United States, where it built an audience and endeared itself to the Academy, which nominated it for the seven Oscars.

But a cloud has hung over Gramercy ever since Seagram, the Canadian liquor and entertainment giant, purchased PolyGram last year for $10.2 billion. Seagram already had a Hollywood studio in Universal and a specialty division in October Films, and suddenly PolyGram and Gramercy were looking expendable.

Seagram sold off pieces of PolyGram — MGM got most of the film library, a company called Carlton Communications Inc. got the rest.

Recently, a Saudi prince, Muhammad Bin Bandur Abdul Aziz, was reportedly willing to pay $400 million to $600 million for the rest of PolyGram, but the deal never happened.

So Seagram merged PolyGram's international businesses with Universal and started laying off employees in the domestic PolyGram office, leaving Gramercy in limbo. Gramercy still could be sold, or it could be merged into October Films.

But studio officials remained committed to "Elizabeth," despite the uncertainty. There was a vigorous Oscar campaign and a healthy marketing push, including television ads.

The film also has received a strong distribution commitment; it has been put in expanded release since the Oscar nominations, earning a modest box-office boost from the Academy.
